

This comment is for the ARRL's suggestion on current Amateur Radio License. I support their ideas. I am currently a Technician amateur. I am still working on my upgrade, but I think opening more bands for more users is a good idea. I feel the code requirement is out dated Fifty years ago it was the standard, but with today's technology, code is backseat. I think this would do wonders for ham radio. Gets more people into our hobby. Please make these changes.
